

SENDING MONEY TO AFRICA RISING PARTNERS

*Please read before donating money through Africa Rising

○ How it works:

- Africa Rising accepts money on behalf of all our partner organizations and a select extended network of vetted African organizations. To see a list of approved organizations, click here. We do not send money to any other African organizations. If you would like us to consider adding another organization, please contact us.
- Please write a check payable to Africa Rising and put the African organization's name in the memo line, or donate online and email amber@africarising.org to tell us the purpose of your donation.
- Ten percent of each donation to an African organization is reinvested by Africa Rising into communications and visits with the African organizations to further Africa Rising's mission and lend capacity to our partners.
- The African organization will receive Ninety percent of the funds donated minus the transaction cost of sending funds. It costs $12 for a wire transfer and varying amounts for Western Union. Whenever possible we use wire transfers, but for rural locations Western Union is the only option. You can find out the cost of a Western Union transfer here by entering the amount donated and the location of the recipient, or email amber@africarising.org about how your funds will be sent.
- If the amount donated is not sufficient to cover the transaction cost, the funds will be returned to the donor on the 15th of the month following the month of the donation unless there are other funds going to the same organization that can be combined.
- All donations are tax-deductible, and you will receive a tax receipt from Africa Rising in January of the year following your donation.
